Conference Sponsorship

The Energy Policy Institute (EPI) hosts the Energy Policy Research Conference. What is EPI?

EPI focuses on challenges and opportunities in energy decisions, through evidence-based research, advising, and training. We aim to enhance how people approach and utilize energy through socio-technical work with policymakers, communities, and members of industry. We employ a multi-disciplinary approach to energy transitions, informing public and private sectors in the west and beyond. As the policy body of the Center for Advanced Energy Studies (CAES), we leverage the expertise of our team and collaborators to foster innovation for future energy systems.

What is the Energy Policy Research Conference?

The Energy Policy Research Conference (EPRC) attracts international and domestic researchers and practitioners, seeking to examine energy policy questions with others from the public and private sectors. This includes academia, research institutes, and NGOs, as well as national laboratories, industry, and government. In 2019, EPRC will be held September 29 - October 1 in Boise, Idaho. We invite you to join us as a sponsor of the conference.

Sponsoring EPRC provides exposure to thousands of energy policy researchers and practitioners via our website, email, and print materials. In addition to brand exposure, tax deductible sponsorships will fund student registration stipends. We offer a suite of benefits that fit a variety of sponsorship needs and budgets. See the breakdown of levels below. For more information about EPRC sponsorship opportunities, please visit our website at <http://epi.boisestate.edu/> or contact us at epi@boisestate.edu.
